

Nicole Giles

School Nutrition Association of South Carolina 2021-2022 Member of the Year

Nicole Giles is the Director of child nutrition programs in Williamsburg County School District. She has been the director for eight years. Prior to WCSD, she worked for CDI Head Start program as the food service director. This area covered Charleston, Berkeley, and Dorchester Counties.

As the director of student nutrition in Williamsburg, she has participated in a Produce University in Sacramento, California and also attended Ole Miss University with a team of nutritionists along with being nominated to attend Team Up Leadership. Nicole has received the AASA Breakfast Grant for three high schools. Her ultimate goal is to feed one student at a time and work on the front line with making decisions with not only foods being healthy, but foods tasting good. “Remember feeding our students today may be fueling the minds of our doctors for tomorrow.”

She has been in Food Service Hospitality for twenty-five plus years, and the owner and operator of A Catered Affair, LLC. Nicole, a graduate of Johnson & Wales University, has been married for twenty-four years and the proud mother of three children.
